“ Sharing an assigned dinner table on board ship with someone wearing such a friendly & generous smile made my first cruise very special & memorable. Lenore & I became good friends ever since and that was more than 27 years ago. Unaware of the part of country where she's from, once I had her over to my house for a prime rib dinner, later I realized that was probably a mistake on my part as I didn't get much comment from her on the meat I prepared after the dinner. So from then on I decided to stick with Chinese dishes and she totally enjoyed them.

I will always remember her sweet smiles and treasure her friendship.

“ We enjoyed receiving and reading letters from Lenore for over a quarter century. Initially they were typed out neatly but soon after they became hand-written and that continued for a number of years. By then she was telling us how she's going to catch up with new technology by switching to the use of word processing with a personal computer. When the letters were finally returning to hand-written version we soon understood why. The individual words might be crafted out by her shaking hand but we knew the messages really came from her solid and sincere heart! Lenore, we will forever appreciate your friendship.
